would only provide aid to a united front as a means of encouraging cooperation. The two groups formed the Front for the Liberation of Zimbabwe (FROLIZI) in March 1972 and then allowed it to collapse a year later. In 1976, ZAPU and ZANU formed the umbrella organization known as the Patriotic Front (PF) to coordinate their strategy. Once in place, the OAU channeled limited cash grants to the PF and helped train its personnel in Tanzania.
